

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

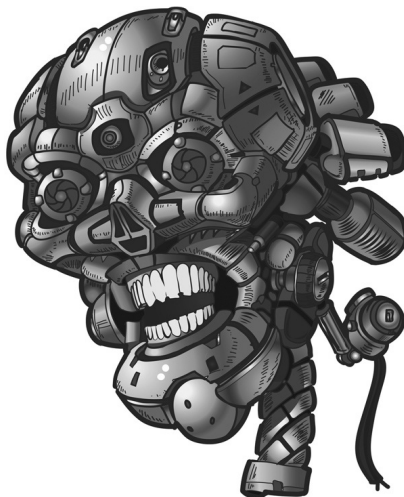

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's review!

Learning Outcome

Exchange information about unlikely events or fairly certain conditions that will be fulfilled in present, past or future in spoken or written texts and in work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can distinguish between real and imaginary conditions.
- I can talk about unlikely or impossible situations in the present or future.
- I can talk about two actions together.

Ask your partner:

- Are you interested in Sci-fi movies? Why or why not?
- What other film genres are you interested in and why?

Let's Explore!

He wrote a script for a sci-fi film!

* The "script" contains the words and directions for a film.

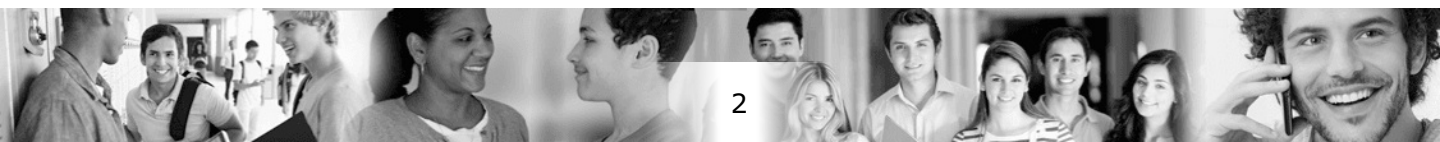

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Had it not been for sci-fi books and movies, I would have never learned to read or become interested in films. If I knew then what I know now about the sci-fi industry, I would have decided on going into filmmaking long ago. Should you see me at the movies gazing lovingly at the screen, understand that it is because I almost missed my calling! Supposing you were desperate to work on a sci-fi film and had never had the chance, what would you do? If you could write a successful script about a manned mission to the red planet and have it filmed on a stage with green screen technology, wouldn't you jump at the chance? If I had started writing earlier, this may not have been my first day on a movie set.

Supposing you were to make a movie with special effects. What would you hope to show? What would you expect to achieve? How much of the budget would you be forced to spend on them? Other writers and directors keep putting out bigger and bigger films. It's hard to imagine topping one of the biggies, but you have to try. I have actually succeeded in coming up with an exciting sci-fi story and now I am depending on having the special effects artists bring it to life.

If you had proposed my doing this even five years ago I would have thought you were crazy. If you looked back at me in those days, you would have seen one unhappy guy. If you've taken a look at me today, you see I'm not complaining about working long hours any more. Were it not for a bit of luck I would still be regretting not taking a chance. Today we're editing a scene with meteorites that materialize in the blink of an eye. Tomorrow we're taking on the extraterrestrials! If you have an idea for a sci-fi blockbuster film, take a chance. I did, now look where I am!

Let's Practice!

Can you identify what is real and what is imaginary?

Instructions: Read the sentences. Place the sentence number into the correct category. The first sentence is already placed.

REAL CONDITIONS
IMAGINARY CONDITIONS	1

1. If you could write a successful script about a manned mission to the red planet, wouldn't you jump at the chance?
2. You have to work hard, if you want to stay in the sci-fi industry.
3. If I knew then what I know now about the sci-fi industry, I would be deciding on making my fourth or fifth film.
4. If you've taken a look at me today, you see I'm not complaining about working long hours any more.
5. You will need to be very patient and determined if you are going to write a sci-fi script.
6. If you had proposed that I do this even 5 years ago, I would have thought you were crazy.

Let's Practice!

You need the most up-to-date special effects to compete with the best.

Instructions: Proofread the sentence. Identify the incorrect words. Write down the correct word to complete the sentence. Practice saying the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. How many of the budget would you be forced to spend on them?
2. Other writer and directors keep putting out bigger and bigger films.
3. It's hard to imagining topping one of the biggies, but you have to try.
4. I have actually succeed in coming up with and exiting sci-fi story.
5. Now I am depending on having the specially effects artists bring it to life.

Extension Activity

Find out about a successful screenwriter or director.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Go online or to the library to find out about a successful screenwriter or director that you are interested in.
- Take enough notes to be able to give a short presentation on the person.
- Also include why you have chosen them to talk about.
- Do your presentation for a small group.
- Listen to other presentations.
- Discuss what you have found out about the screenwriters and directors.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I find out about a successful screenwriter or director.

☐ ☐

I take notes to prepare a short presentation.

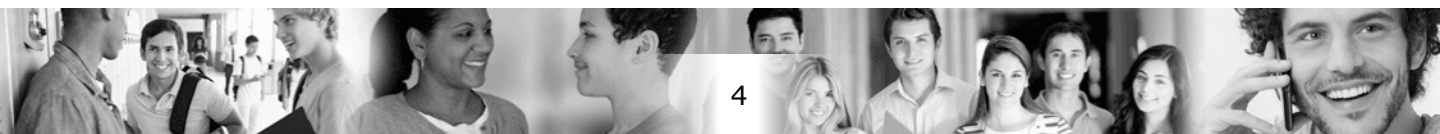

☐ ☐

I share my presentation and discuss with others.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to gaze (verb): to look at something for a long time
e.g. Have you ever observed someone gazing into the night sky with longing?
- comet (noun): a body of rock and ice that travels around the sun e.g. Have you ever noticed comets hurtling through the night sky and wondered what it would look like up close?
- meteorite (noun): rock from space that has landed on Earth
e.g. A meteorite found on a scientific expedition to Antarctica in 1984 suggested that there might once have been life on another planet.
- red planet (noun): another name for Mars
e.g. Today they are still looking to the red planet for signs of life.
- manned mission (noun): a human crew of explorers
e.g. Would they put together a manned mission if they had some answers.
- extraterrestrial (adjective): coming from outside planet Earth
e.g. The government has already invested millions of dollars in research on extraterrestrial life.
- in the blink of an eye (expression): extremely quickly
e.g. Dinosaurs live again, spaceships battle to save the planet, and whole cities disappear in the blink of an eye – all thanks to special effects.
- green screen (noun): a green monochrome backdrop used to project images on later for filmmaking e.g. For example, green screens let moviemakers shoot completely separate scenes and then combine them into one.
- to edit (verb): to cut a movie the way you want it
e.g. Should a director want even more control, his computer would allow him to edit scenes until they are perfect.

Learning Points

Real and Unreal Conditionals

You can use the Real conditional with If clauses to talk situations and outcomes. The Real Conditional can be used to connect actions and consequences together. You can talk about possible future event with a Present Perfect verb in the If clause and a future form in the main clause.

You use the Unreal Conditional to express imaginary or future situations.

You use the Unreal Conditional to talk about events that are impossible situations in the present or events unlikely to happen in the future.

You use the Real Conditional to say it's possible that you will or will not do something. In that condition, something else may, may not will or will not happen.

The parts of the sentence are divided into two clauses: the If clause and the Condition clause.

Structure:

If + Present Simple/Present continuous ... will/Present Continuous / be going to

Example:

We'll need a holographic TV if we're going to keep up.

You can use an Imperative verb in the main clause if you are making offers, giving instructions, or suggesting advice.

Example:

Get one of these if you want to save water.

You can use a verb in the Present Perfect with the if- clause to suggest that the action needs to be completed before the situation in the main clause can be true.

Structure: If+ Present/Present Perfect ... Future form (will, Present Continuous, be going to)

The Unreal Conditional is also called the second conditional.

Structure:

If... Simple Past, ... would+verb or Would+verb ... if ... Simple Past.

Example:

If scientists knew for sure they wouldn't have to keep looking for answers.

You use If ... were + to + infinitive to talk about imaginary future situations, especially when it is not likely the situation will happen.

Example:

If you were to stand in a crowded area and watch the people, what would you see?

You use if it was not for + noun phrase to say that one situation depends on another situation or person to come true. You use If it weren't for ... if you want to express yourself more formally.

Example:

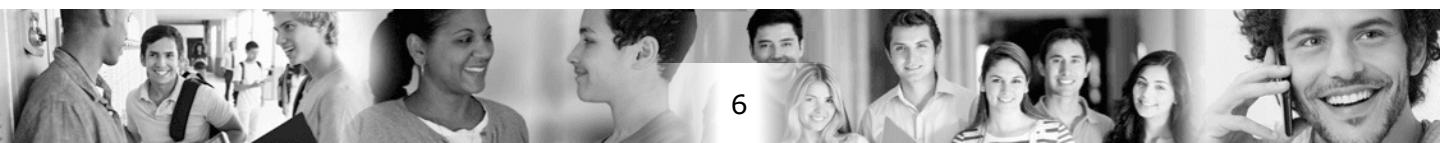

Learning Points

If it weren't for overzealous reporters making fun of stories, more people wouldn't be worrying about telling them.

Examples:

- If you could write a successful script about a manned mission to the red planet and have it filmed on a stage with green screen technology, wouldn't you jump at the chance?
- If I knew I could write earlier, this wouldn't be my first day on a movie set.

Learning Points

Verbs Followed by -ing and To-Infinitives

When you talk about two actions linked together, you normally use two verbs. The first verb follows the rules of conjugation for the sentence, while the second verb can be a verb in the -ing form.

You can use two verbs to talk about two connected actions. The main verb introduces the main action, and the second verb in the -ing form gives more information about that action.

You can use a variety of verbs followed by a verb in the -ing form. Some of these verbs are related in meaning, or have opposite meanings, like: like/dislike, start/stop, can't bear/stand, love/adore/hate, allow/forbid, admit/deny, quit/finish, appreciate/resent ...

You can often put an object between the two verbs. You can use pronouns and possessives. Structure: Subject + first verb + object + -ing form of the second verb

Example: Have you ever observed someone gazing into the night sky with longing?

Prepositional verbs are always followed by another verb in the -ing form like end up, carry on, keep on, go on, succeed in, depend on, adjust to, put off ...

Some verbs can be followed by either an -ing verb or to+Infinitive, like like, love, hate, dislike, intend, dread, advise, recommend, regret ... The difference in meaning depends on the preceding verb.

Forget/Remember with to+Infinitive are looking forward into a future situation. With an -ing form they refer to a past action.

Advise/Recommend with to+Infinitive are followed by an object. With an -ing form there is no object.

Regret with to+Infinitive is a polite form of apology. With an -ing form it has the meaning of If only this hadn't happened.

Look at some examples from the text:

Examples:

- Other writers and directors keep putting out bigger and bigger films.
- It's hard to imagine topping one of the biggies, but you have to try.
- I have actually succeeded in coming up with an exciting sci-fi story and now I am depending on having the special effects artists bring it to life.
- Supposing you were to make a movie with special effects. What would you hope to show? What would you expect to achieve? How much of the budget would you be forced to spend on them?

